The year ICOLD has spent last year... (text continues with details of the organization's activities, including the 10th anniversary of the World Dam Safety Summit and the 10th anniversary of the ICOLD Dam Safety Summit in 2012. It mentions the organization's focus on dam safety, water resources, and the environment. The text also discusses the organization's role in promoting dam safety and the environment, and its efforts to improve dam safety and the environment. The text concludes with a call to action for dam owners and operators to improve dam safety and the environment.)

ICOLD is an acronym for International Commission on Large Dams. It was founded in 1962 as the International Commission on Large Dams (ICOLD). The organization's main objective is to promote the safe design, construction, and operation of large dams, and to improve the safety and performance of existing dams. ICOLD also works to promote the efficient use of water resources and the environment.

ICOLD is a non-profit organization with a membership of over 100 countries. It is the largest international organization in the world dedicated to dam safety and the environment. ICOLD's activities include the publication of the Journal of Dam Safety, the organization of international conferences and seminars, and the provision of technical assistance and training to dam owners and operators.

ICOLD's headquarters are located in Paris, France. The organization has a global network of regional offices and is active in more than 100 countries. ICOLD's website is www.icold.org.

The Dams Newsletter is published twice a year, in March and September. It provides news and information on dam safety and the environment, and is a valuable resource for dam owners and operators. The newsletter is available in English and French.
